Introduction

This document sets out the ministry's practice standards for child maintenance agreements and maintenance orders.

The parent's contribution to the maintenance of a child who is in the care of the ministry has an important role in ensuring continuation of the parent's commitment to the child and involvement in the plan of care to have the child returned home. While the parent's maintenance contribution fulfills an important financial responsibility, it also represents to the child the parent's willingness to continue in the role of parent. Research suggests that this ongoing connection improves a child's likelihood of returning home.

A child maintenance agreement is completed automatically whenever a parent enters into a voluntary care agreement or special needs agreement with the ministry and the maintenance calculation indicates that a maintenance contribution is required.

In the case of a child in the care of the ministry under a temporary custody order and where the maintenance calculation indicates that a maintenance contribution is required, a child maintenance agreement should be completed whenever agreement can be reached. If an agreement is not entered into by a parent, a maintenance order can be made by the court.

What are practice standards?

Practice standards are statements that describe a required level of performance. The practice standards in this document state what children, families and the public can expect of child welfare practice in British Columbia.

This set of practice standards represents expectations of child welfare practice regarding child maintenance agreements and maintenance orders as it applies to child protection, guardianship, family support services, and community living services. The standards have been developed in accordance with the statutory provisions regarding child maintenance agreements and orders in the Child, Family and Community Service Act.

These practice standards are presented in the company of relevant practice guidelines and recommended procedures.

Legislation and other practice standards that guide child maintenance agreements

Legislation

The responsibility of the parent to contribute financially to the care of the child is established in section 97 of the Child, Family and Community Services Act (see Appendix 1).

Practice standards are to be interpreted and administered in accordance with the guiding principles and service delivery principles of the Child, Family and Community Service Act.

Other practice standards

Practice Standard #3 of Practice Standards for Voluntary Care Agreements and Practice Standards for Special Needs Agreements sets out the requirement for a child maintenance agreement to be completed where it is determined that the parent is required to contribute financially to the care of her/his child while in the Director's care.

1. Determining Whether a Child Maintenance Agreement is Required

A parent remains responsible for contributing to the maintenance of a child who is:

- in care under a voluntary care agreement (VCA) or special needs agreement (SNA)
- in temporary care as the result of a child protection order
- in the custody of a person other than the parent under a temporary custody order

Determining whether a parent's income qualifies

The parent's maintenance contribution is calculated on the basis of the following information about the family:

- family income (the combined annual net income of any parents residing in the home, before deduction of RRSP contributions)
- the number of children in the care of the ministry
- the number of dependent children at home

Appendix 2 gives the step-by-step calculation of a parent's monthly contribution, along with three sample calculations. Appendix 3 shows the form used to calculate the monthly maintenance payment.

Exemptions from maintenance contributions

No maintenance contribution is required:

- if the family is receiving BC Benefits
- if the family's total income is $20,000 or less
- if the maintenance contribution required is $25 or less

When to complete a child maintenance agreement or apply for a maintenance order

A child maintenance agreement with the parent is completed:

- always prior to a child being placed in care under aVCA or SNA (a child maintenance agreement must be completed for every VCA or SNA if the maintenance calculation indicates that a contribution is required from the parent; see Practice Standard for Voluntary Care Agreements #3 and Practice Standard for Special Needs Agreements #3).
- whenever possible when an application is being made to the court for temporary custody of a child as part of a child protection case. If you cannot reach agreement on maintenance, explain your obligation to apply for a maintenance order under section 97(5) of the Act. You may recommend mediation to resolve any disagreements over maintenance. If you cannot reach agreement, and the parent refuses to participate in mediation, apply to the court for a maintenance order (see page 6).

PRACTICE STANDARD 1

MAINTENANCE ORDERS

A Maintenance Order must be sought whenever the maintenance calculation indicates that a parent is required to make a contribution to the care of a child under a temporary custody order and the parent is unwilling to do so.

An application to the court for a maintenance order is required at the time of the protection hearing.

1. Determining Whether a Child Maintenance Agreement is Required

A parent remains responsible for contributing to the maintenance of a child who is:

- in care under a voluntary care agreement (VCA) or special needs agreement (SNA)
- in temporary care as the result of a child protection order
- in the custody of a person other than the parent under a temporary custody order

Determining whether a parent's income qualifies

The parent's maintenance contribution is calculated on the basis of the following information about the family:

- family income (the combined annual net income of any parents residing in the home, before deduction of RRSP contributions)
- the number of children in the care of the ministry
- the number of dependent children at home

Appendix 2 gives the step-by-step calculation of a parent's monthly contribution, along with three sample calculations. Appendix 3 shows the form used to calculate the monthly maintenance payment.

Exemptions from maintenance contributions

No maintenance contribution is required:

- if the family is receiving BC Benefits
- if the family's total income is $20,000 or less
- if the maintenance contribution required is $25 or less

When to complete a child maintenance agreement or apply for a maintenance order

A child maintenance agreement with the parent is completed:

- always prior to a child being placed in care under aVCA or SNA (a child maintenance agreement must be completed for every VCA or SNA if the maintenance calculation indicates that a contribution is required from the parent; see Practice Standard for Voluntary Care Agreements #3 and Practice Standard for Special Needs Agreements #3).
- whenever possible when an application is being made to the court for temporary custody of a child as part of a child protection case. If you cannot reach agreement on maintenance, explain your obligation to apply for a maintenance order under section 97(5) of the Act. You may recommend mediation to resolve any disagreements over maintenance. If you cannot reach agreement, and the parent refuses to participate in mediation, apply to the court for a maintenance order (see page 6).

MAINTENANCE ORDERS

A Maintenance Order must be sought whenever the maintenance calculation indicates that a parent is required to make a contribution to the care of a child under a temporary custody order and the parent is unwilling to do so.

An application to the court for a maintenance order is required at the time of the protection hearing.

2. Discussing the child maintenance agreement with the parent

Voluntary care and special needs agreements

If you are entering into a voluntary care agreement or special needs agreement with a parent, discuss maintenance contributions with the parent before you sign the agreement.

Children in care through a temporary custody order

If you are applying at a protection hearing for temporary custody of a child, either in the Director's care or in the care of another person other than the parent (and with whom you have a support agreement), meet with the parent before the protection hearing to discuss the parent's contribution to the child's maintenance.

What to discuss with the parent

The discussion with the parent about maintenance is part of the development of the child's plan of care. Explain to the parent the role of the maintenance contribution in the child's plan. The discussion should cover the following topics:

- parental responsibility
- financial implications
- maintenance payment procedures

Parental Responsibility

Explain the parent's continued responsibility to contribute, financially and otherwise, to the maintenance of the child to meet the goals of the plan of care. Advise the parent to notify the ministry if their financial or household situation changes in a way that would influence the amount of maintenance payable (for example, a change in the number of children at home, number of co-residing parents).

Financial Implications

Your discussion with the parent should cover the following information about maintenance payments:

- The ministry has an obligation to seek a child maintenance agreement with the parent of a child in temporary care where the maintenance calculation indicates that a maintenance contribution is required. If a child maintenance agreement is not reached voluntarily with the parent, then a maintenance order is required.
- A child maintenance agreement is required for any child who comes into care under a VCA or SNA where the maintenance calculation indicates that a maintenance contribution is required.
- Maintenance is required for a child who is in the care of a person other than the parent and with whom the ministry has a support agreement. In such instances, the child maintenance agreement is made with the parent or, where necessary, an application is made to court for a maintenance order.
- The amount of the financial contribution required from the parent (see Appendix 2 and 3).
- Maintenance payments are legally binding and will be enforced.
- Maintenance payments are not reduced if the child spends time at home (for example on overnight or weekend visits).
- The parent is not eligible to receive the Child Tax Benefit/BC Family Bonus Benefits for the child beginning the first day of the month following the month in which the child comes into care.

- The federal government may require the parent to return any money received for benefits after that day.
- Financial Services Branch will apply for the Children's Special Allowance from Revenue Canada.
- The parent should contact Revenue Canada to cancel the Child Tax Benefit/BC Family Bonus Benefits to avoid overpayment.

Note: If the child is in the temporary care of a person other than the parent under a section 41(1)(b) order, and there is no support agreement with the Ministry, that person may apply for the Children's Special Allowance.

Maintenance Payment Procedures

Your discussion with the parent should cover the following information about making maintenance payments:

- Maintenance payments are made at the end of each month.
- Post-dated cheques are required for the term of the agreement.
- Maintenance payments for the first and last months the child is in care are prorated according to the number of days the child is in care during each of these months.
- Maintenance is payable from the first until the last day the child is in the ministry's care.
- Child maintenance agreements are enforced if payments are in arrears.
- On return of the child to the parent's care, the parent must apply for reinstatement of the Child Tax Benefit. The parent applies for reinstatement by sending Revenue Canada a completed Child Tax Benefit Application kit. Residents of BC with inquiries related to the Child Tax Benefit can call 1-800-387-1193.

Detailed information about how maintenance payments are to be made is included in the child maintenance agreement.

3. Completing and filing a child maintenance agreement

If the maintenance calculation indicates that the parent is required to contribute to the child's maintenance, draw up the child maintenance agreement with the parent, using the Chil·' Maintenance Agreement form.

The child maintenance agreement may be filed with the court and has the same effect as a maintenance order made under the Family Relations Act (FRA). This would occur if the agreement is in default. Where it is necessary to register a child maintenance agreement, Financial Services Branch will take responsibility for registering it with the court. An agreement registered in court may be enforced, changed, or cancelled in the same manner and on the same basis as a maintenance order made under the FRA .

Your responsibilities in completing a child maintenance agreement

When completing a child maintenance agreement with a parent, you are responsible for:

- calculating the amount of maintenance required
- signing the agreement
- obtaining post-dated cheques from the parent for the entire term of the child maintenance agreement.

Ensure that the post-dated cheques are:

- made out for the correct amount
- made payable to the Minister of Finance and Corporate Relations
- signed by the parent
- dated appropriately

Cheques must be stapled to the child maintenance agreement and mailed to:

Ministry for Children and Families
Financial Services Branch
PO Box 9760 Stn Prov Govt
Victoria, BC V8W 9S4

Your responsibility ends once the child maintenance agreement and post-dated cheques are mailed to Financial Services Branch.

4. When agreement cannot be reached

Voluntary care and special needs agreements

If you cannot reach agreement with the parent about the parent's maintenance contributions, a VCA or SNA may not be entered into.

Children in care through a temporary custody order

If you are not able to obtain the parent's agreement on the terms of a child maintenance agreement or the amount of the parent's contribution to the child's maintenance, apply to the court for a maintenance order.

Before applying for a maintenance order, you may recommend to the parent that Child Protection Mediation services be used in order to reach agreement (see Court Procedures for Child Protection, page 33).

If the parent does not agree to mediation, apply for a maintenance order as follows:

1. Complete and file Form 2 (Application for an Order) with the provincial court.
2. Obtain a date and time for a hearing from the registry.
3. Serve notice of the time, date, and place of the hearing on the parent and any others requiring notice.
4. Provide the parent with information about the terms of the order, including the amount of maintenance you are requesting in the order.
5. Consult with contract legal counsel about the evidence required for the hearing.

If you want to shorten or extend the timeframe for service or apply to dispense with the requirement for notice, consult with contract legal counsel.

A maintenance order may include one or more or the terms listed in section 61(3) of the Family Relations Act, including:

- an amount paid periodically, annually or otherwise, and either for an indefinite or limited period or until a specified event, such as the child's return to the parent's care or the date a continuing custody order is made
- payment of a lump sum directly or in trust on terms provided
- charging of property with payment under the order
- payment of support and maintenance from the date the application in the proceeding was served on the respondent

5. Enforcement of child maintenance agreements

Child maintenance agreements are legally binding and will be enforced.

Financial Services Branch (FSB) is responsible for the enforcement of child maintenance agreements. FSB will establish an accounts receivable for each parent who has a child maintenance agreement with the ministry. Monthly statements will be mailed to the parent advising the parent of the status of the account.

FSB will maintain a file of post-dated cheques and the file will be kept in a safe. As post-dated cheques become due, FSB will:

- prepare a bank deposit; and
- record the payment in the accounts receivable subsidiary ledger

Cheques that are returned NSF or dishonored for any reason will result in an additional $20.00 fee being charged to the parent. When dishonored cheques are returned by a financial institution, FSB will:

1. Reverse the entry which recorded the payment.
2. Assess a $20.00 returned cheque fee to the parent.
3. Record the $20.00 fee on the parent's account.
4. Send a letter to the parent advising her or him of the dishonored item.

The parent will be required to replace the dishonored cheque with a certified cheque or money order for the amount of the dishonored cheque and the additional $20.00 returned cheque fee.

If for any reason maintenance becomes 30 days in arrears, FSB will send a letter advising the parent that in accordance with the terms of their child maintenance agreement the payment is past due and that payment must be made in full.

If for any reason maintenance becomes 60 days in arrears, a second letter will be sent advising the parent that payment must be received within 30 days or the account will be forwarded to the Loans Administration Branch for collection. Items forwarded to the Loans Administration Branch may result in letters being filed with credit agencies.

Appendix 1: Section 97– Maintenance agreements and orders

(1) A parent remains responsible to contribute to the maintenance of

a) a child in care unless the child is in care under a continuing custody order, and

b) a child in the custody of a person other than the parent under a temporary custody order.

(2) A director may make a written agreement with a parent for contributions by the parent to the maintenance of a child in care.

(3) A director may file and agreement made under subsection (2) in the court

(4) The agreement, if filed, has the same effect and may be enforced, changed or canceled in the same manner and on the same basis as a maintenance order made under the Family Relations Act.

(5) On application by a director, the court may order a parent who is responsible to contribute under subsection (1) to pay to the director or to a person designated in the order an amount the court considers reasonable for the maintenance of a child

(6) At least 10 days before the date set for hearing an application for a maintenance order, notice of the time, date and place of the hearing must be served on the persons who, under section 39, are entitled to notice

(7) In making a maintenance order, the court must take the following into account:

a) the needs, means, capacity and economic circumstances of the parent;

b) the needs, means and circumstances of the child;

c) any legal right of the child to receive support from another source;

d) any other circumstance the court considers relevant.

(8) A maintenance order made under this section may

a) include one or more of the terms mentioned in section 61 (3) of the Family Relations Act, and

b) be enforced, changed or canceled in the same manner and on the same basis as an order made under that Act.

Appendix 2: Calculating the Monthly Maintenance Contribution

Step 1: Determine family income level

- Ask the parent signing the agreement if there is a co-residing parent (another adult living in the home who is acting in a parental role and who is contributing to the child's care)
- For each co-residing parent, obtain a copy of their most recent Notice of Assessment from Revenue Canada (see samples in Appendix 5).
- For each co-residing parent:
  - locate the parent's Net Income (line 236) on the Notice of Assessment
  - add to the parent's Net Income the amount of any Registered Retirement Savings Plan contributions (from the RRSP Contribution Line on the Notice of Assessment)

    The sum of line 236 plus the parent's RRSP contribution is the Parent's Income for the purpose of this calculation.
- Add together the Parent's Income for each co-residing parent. The result is the Total Family Income.

  Note: If the parent does not have a Notice of Assessment from Revenue Canada, contact Financial Services Branch (250-387-5946) and they will obtain a copy from Revenue Canada.

Step 2: Determine if a maintenance contribution is required

- If the Total Family Income is $20,000 or more, continue to Step 3.
- If the total is less that $20,000, no maintenance contribution is required.

Step 3: Determine the total number of children from the family who are in the ministry's care

- Ask the attending parent how many children from the immediate family are being cared for by the ministry through a VCA, SNA or temporary custody order.
- Obtain a copy of any existing child maintenance agreements for any children who are already in the ministry's care. These agreements will have to be cancelled and replaced by a new agreement that provides support for all the children.

  Note: By having one agreement that covers all the children in the ministry's care, the parent will pay less than if individual agreements were made for each child.

Step 4: Determine the base amount of maintenance required

- Refer to the appropriate Maintenance Table for the number of children in care (Appendix 4).
- Using the Total Family Income from Step 1, find the base monthly maintenance required for the number of children in care.

  Note: The amounts in the tables are based on the Federal Child Support Guidelines, but have been reduced for parents at lower income levels. For example, the base monthly contribution for a family whose total income falls between $20,000 and $24,999 is 35% of the amount specified under the Federal Child Support Guidelines.

Step 5: Determine the deduction for children residing at home who the parent is required to support

- For each child residing at home who the parent is required to support, deduct $40 from the base monthly maintenance the parent is required to pay.
- If a parent receives a deduction for children of his or her spouse's previous relationships, the spouse's income must be included in the family income.

Sample Calculations of Monthly Maintenance Payable

The examples below show how the monthly maintenance payable would be calculated in three different cases.

Example 1: A two-parent family with three children. One child is in the care of the ministry; two children are being supported by the parents at home.

Step 1:
Parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Revenue Canada Notice of Assessment)	$40,998.00
Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment)	$5,100.00
Parent's Income		46,098.00
Other co-residing parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Notice of Assessment)	44,334.00
Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment)	3,000.00
Co-residing Parent's Income		47,334.00
Total Family Income		93,432.00
Step 2:
If the Total Family Income is $20,000 or greater, continue to Step 3
If the Total Family Income is less than $20,000, do not enter into a Child maintenance agreement.
Step 3
Number of children in the ministry's care	1
Step 4
Base amount of maintenance payable for the number of children in the ministry's care (see appropriate Maintenance Table)		716.00
Step 5
Number of children residing in the household who require support	2
Deduct $40 for each child residing in the household who requires support		80.00
Total Maintenance Payable for all Children in the Ministry's Care		636.00

Example 2: A single parent with three children. Two children are in the care of the ministry; one is at home.

Step 1:
Parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Revenue Canada Notice of Assessment)	$35,500.00
Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment)	0.00
Parent's Income		35,500.00
Other co-residing parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Notice of Assessment)	0.00
Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment)	0.00
Co-residing Parent's Income		0.00
Total Family Income		35,500.00
Step 2:
If the Total Family Income is $20,000 or greater, continue to Step 3
If the Total Family Income is less than $20,000, do not enter into a Child maintenance agreement.
Step 3
Number of children in the ministry's care 2
Step 4
Base amount of maintenance payable for the number of children in the ministry's care (see appropriate Maintenance Table)		353.00
Step 5
Number of children residing in the household who require support 1
Deduct $40 for each child residing in the household who requires support		40.00
Total Maintenance Payable for all Children in the Ministry's Care		313.00

Example 3: A single parent with three children. One child is in the care of the ministry; the other two are at home.

Step 1:
Parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Revenue Canada Notice of Assessment)	$25,500.00
Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment)	1000.00
Parent's Income		26,500.00
Other co-residing parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Notice of Assessment)	0.00
Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment)	0.00
Co-residing Parent's Income		0.00
Total Family Income		26,500.00
Step 2:
If the Total Family Income is $20,000 or greater, continue to Step 3.
If the Total Family Income is less than $20,000, do not enter into a Child maintenance agreement.
Step 3
Number of children in the ministry's care 1
Step 4
Base amount of maintenance payable for the number of children in the ministry's care (see appropriate Maintenance Table)		127.00
Step 5
Number of children residing in the household who require support 2
Deduct $40 for each child residing in the household who requires support		80.00
Total Maintenance Payable for all Children in the Ministry's Care		47.00

Appendix 3: Form for Calculating Monthly Maintenance Payable

- If the family is receiving BC Benefits, do not enter into a child maintenance agreement.
- For families not receiving BC Benefits, complete the following calculation.

Step 1:

Parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Revenue Canada Notice of Assessment) _____

Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment) _____

Parent's Income _____

Other co-residing parent's Net Income (from line 236 on Notice of Assessment) _____

Add: RRSP Contribution (from RRSP Contribution line on Notice of Assessment) _____

Co-residing Parent's Income _____

Total Family Income _____

Step 2:

If Total Family Income is $20,000 or greater, proceed to Step 3.

If Total Family Income is less than $20,000, do not enter into a Child maintenance agreement.

Step 3

Number of children in the ministry's care _____

Step 4

Base amount of maintenance payable for the number of children in the ministry's care (see appropriate Maintenance Table) _____

Step 5

Number of children residing in the household who require support _____

Deduct $40 for each child residing in the household who requires support $40 x____= _____

Total Maintenance Payable for all Children in the Ministry's Care _____
